

Teaching the Write Way

We are pleased to offer two interactive professional learning sessions that focus on teaching writing to students on the ASOL and SOL curriculums.

Target Audience: Teachers and other professionals who support students on the ASOL or SOL curriculums (the two sessions are differentiated to those groups). Sessions will focus on helping students develop a love of writing and the necessary skills to successfully participate in authentic writing activities.

Please attend one or both sessions based on the following descriptions:

Teaching the Write Way (ASOL Focus)

Wednesday, November 1, 2017

Attend if you teach students who:

- use the ASOLs;
- struggle writing with a pencil/pen;
- do not yet compose sentences or paragraphs;
- OR are not motivated to write.

We will focus on:

- understanding the developmental stages of writing;
- exploring available assistive technology, including Alternative Pencils;
- motivating students to enjoy writing and engage in the writing process
- AND creating engaging ASOL-Referenced writing activities for ALL students.

Teaching the Write Way (SOL Focus)

December 6, 2017

Attend if you teach students:

- on the SOL curriculum;
- in inclusive settings;
- who require instructional interventions;
- OR are not motivated to write.

We will focus on:

- understanding the developmental stages of writing;
- lessons and strategies that motivate students to improve their attitudes about writing, and improve the quality of their writing;
- Specially Designed Instruction for teaching the writing process
- AND creating engaging SOL-referenced pre-writing and writing activities for ALL students.
